WELCOME TO THE ALUMNAE FROM THEIR PRESIDENT

Some of the Alumnae are my class mates, some few are older than I, but the vast majority are my pupils. Therefore, whenever I start to say anything to the Alumnae I always feel like beginning, "Now give me your attention while I call the roll. What are the steps in teaching a pre primer chart?"

To my students, my peers, and my elders then, in this Home Coming edition of the Colonnade, I bid you welcome to our campus, to our paper, and to our friendship. We are a vast band of women journeying on our differing paths, facing earnestly separate goals, but all bound together by one common cord of affection for Alma Mater.

We are right in our loyal love for our College. Alma Mater mellowed as the years pass over her beautiful head, each one leaving some mark of her growth, her development, and her added loveliness.

We, her daughters rejoice in her strength, marvel at her wisdom, and rely on her ideals. Little sisters, nieces, daughters come to the Alma Mater we have attended because we can trust her to develop them and help them toward their goal of fine upright womanhood.

In the name then of the Alumnae Association of this our Alma Mater I bid you welcome, welcome to her campus, to her buildings, and to the friendship of nearly six thousand of your fellow graduates.

ALUMNAE SERVICE

The Alumnae Thanksgiving Service will be held in the Auditorium at 9:30 Thanksgiving morning. Mrs. Smith of Augusta, formerly Miss Julia Bethune of Milledgeville, and Miss May France Cowan, the former chairman of the Y. W. C. A. Alumnae committee, will lead the service.

The Y. W. C. A. extends a most cordial invitation to all of the student body here and all those who shall return for the homecoming season to come to this Alumnae service.

GREETINGS FROM BALDWIN COUNTY ALUMNAE

At this Thanksgiving season, we, the members of G. S. C. W. club, Baldwin County, extend to the Alumnae Association, in annual session, a most cordial greeting.

We are glad you have returned, even for a short time, to see and appreciate the good things of our Alma Mater. In this we have the advantage over you, because we can see and feel her direct influence every day in the year. For all of this we are very grateful.

We realize and appreciate the fact, the members of the Alumnae on G. S. C. W. grounds are a most efficient group, but if there is anything you desire and they are pressed for time call on the officers of Baldwin County Club.

KEMPER THOMPSON ROACH,
Treasurer.

MARIE STEMBRIDGE ECHOLS,
Secretary.

REBECCA LITTLE MCKINLEY,
President.

THE ALUMNAE PAGE OF THE COLONNADE

Each issue of the Colonnade this year has contained an Alumnae page the purpose of which has been twofold: to acquaint G. S. C. Alumnae with happenings on the campus, and to give them an opportunity of expressing themselves and of sending reports of their whereabouts and occupation back to their Alma Mater. It is only through the combined efforts of Alumnae and of the Colonnade committee of the Alumnae Association that the page will be successful. We ask for your loyal cooperation in securing a page that will be indispensable to the Alumnae, to the Colonnade and to the present body.

FIRST ISSUE OF CORINTHIAN PUBLISHED

The first issue of the Corinthian, Magazine edited by the Literary Guild at G. S. C. W. came from the press this week. Miss Dorcas Rucker is the Editor-in-Chief.

Y. W. C. A. TO PRESENT THANKSGIVING PROGRAM

The Alumnae Committee of the Y. W. C. A. is sponsoring a program which will be presented in the G. S. C. W. Auditorium Thursday morning, November 28, at nine thirty. This is the annual home coming season at G. S. C. W., and a large number of Alumnae will probably be back on the campus at this time, some of whom will take part on the Thanksgiving program.

Miss Katherine Scott of Milledgeville, who is President of the Alumnae, will welcome the Alumnae and visitors to the College. Miss Scott is well known and loved by the Alumnae and students of G. S. C.

Miss Mary Frances Cowan of Conyers, Ga., who was Chairman of the Alumnae Committee of the Y. W. C. A. last year, will respond to the welcome address in behalf of the Alumnae. The students have missed Mary Frances very much this year and will be very glad to have her back again.

Mrs. Helen Long of Milledgeville will render a vocal solo. It is always a pleasure to hear Mrs. Long sing. She has a wonderful soprano voice.

Organ music furnished by Miss Maggie Jenkins of Dooling, Ga., will be an added feature of the program.

Mrs. Fred Smith of Augusta, Ga., will be the principal speaker of the morning. She will be remembered in Milledgeville and by the Alumnae as Miss Julia Bethune of Milledgeville.

Mrs. Smith was formerly a student at the Georgia State College for Women; she was for a time Supervisor in the Peabody High School which is connected with the College; and also she was President of the Alumnae. She is a woman of rare personality and charm; and is an interesting and forceful speaker. Many are looking forward to this address with a great deal of interest.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend this program. It will be an interesting and inspirational service, and it is hoped, will be of real and lasting value to you now and in years to come.

NEW ALUMNAE BULLETIN TO BE ISSUED

The Alumnae Association under the direction of its president, Miss Katherine Scott, is revising the bulletin of September 1926, which gave a register of the Graduates of the Georgia State College for Women from 1892 through 1926. It is the desire of the association to bring this register up-to-date and to correct the addresses of the graduates.

The faculty and students of the College were requested to aid in securing the necessary information. Many of the graduates have given invaluable help by sending to the Association the names, addresses, dates of graduation of the Alumnae in their communities. Much interesting material has been secured and it is the desire of the committee to make the new bulletin of interest and value to the College, the Alumnae Association, and the graduates.

The Alumnae Association wishes to thank everyone who has contributed helpful information and earnestly requests wholehearted co-operation in this work.

If you read this article and you can help, won't you send the following information to the Alumnae Association, Georgia State College for Women, Milledgeville, Georgia?

AN INVITATION TO ALUMNAE

Thanksgiving day is home coming day for G. S. C. girls. We hope that 1929 Thanksgiving season will find a great number of former students back on the campus.

We wish to extend to all visiting Alumnae, student Alumnae Baldwin County Alumnae and the College Faculty a cordial invitation to attend an informal tea at the College Tea Room on Friday afternoon November 29th between the hours of 4:30 and 6:30.

DR. J. L. BEESON WELCOMES ALUMNAE TO CAMPUS

November 13, 1929.

Dear Alumnae:

I extend to you on behalf of the College a cordial invitation and welcome to the Homecoming during Thanksgiving week.

When you left the College on your graduation day I hope that you felt as if you were leaving home. The President, the Matrons, and the Faculty strive constantly to make the students happy in their life and work at the College and to feel that this is home to them for a season. The student can work better, grow and develop better, and unfold her God-given powers better, if she is happy while in College. We have called the annual visit to the former students at Thanksgiving "Homecoming." This is a beautiful expression, and I hope that you will feel that you are coming back home for a visit.

I want each Alumnae to feel that your College is interested in you, your success and happiness after you leave its halls, and we want you to continue to be interested in the College, to love it and to work for its welfare. The splendid success of this Institution has been due to the co-operative effort of the Board of Directors, the President the Faculty, the Staff, the Students, and the Alumnae.

We have again this year the largest enrollment in the history of the College. We have added several new teachers with splendid educational and personal equipment, and the College is functioning smoothly and efficiently. As we grow in numbers year by year, we want at the same time to improve our material equipment, strengthen our faculty, and make the college work more thorough.

We shall be glad to have at least a thousand of the Alumnae present at the Homecoming season.

Very sincerely yours,

J. L. BEESON

Dr. J. L. Beeson Relates History and Development Of Georgia State College for Women

Dr. J. L. Beeson, President of the Georgia State College for Women, in discussing the history and development of the college stated, "from the very beginning it has been the purpose of this institution to prepare the young women of Georgia for a better and more intelligent service to the state, whether their sphere of activity be in the home or in the professional field."

"Prompted by the desire to create an institution with such a purpose," he continued, "the Georgia Legislature passed a special act in the summer of 1889 creating the Georgia Normal and Industrial College. The bill was introduced into the lower house of the legislature by the Honorable William Y. Atkinson, then representative of Coweta county and afterwards Governor of Georgia for two terms."

"This distinguished Georgian is justly regarded as father of the institution. He was president of its Board of Directors from its foundation up to the day of his death in 1899."

"The corner-stone of the main building was laid November 27, 1890 and the edifice was pushed rapidly to completion."

"On Monday, September 30, 1891 the college was formally opened and the work of the first session began. During that session there were enrolled one hundred and seventy-five students, coming from seventy-five counties in Georgia. Since the beginning of the second annual session the school has been crowded to its utmost capacity, and every year many applicants for admission have been turned away on account of the lack of room."

The Georgia State College for Women is justly proud of its line of illustrious presidents, under whose guidance it has developed from a normal school into a standardized college. Its first president was Dr. J. Harris Chappell, who held the office from 1890 to 1904, when he was granted a leave of absence because of failing health. He was succeeded by Dr. Marvin M. Parks who acted as president during 1904. He was then elected President and served in this capacity from 1905 to 1927, when his death came as a great shock to his innumerable friends and admirers throughout the state. Dr. Parks was succeeded by Dr. J. L. Beeson, who at the present time occupies the presidential chair.

In drawing a comparison between the college in its early days and the college at the present date. Dr. Beeson called attention to the number of buildings on the campus in 1908 and number of buildings in 1928.

"In 1908," he pointed out, "there were six buildings on the campus. These included the main college building, Atkinson Hall Dormitory, the Executive Mansion, Mansion Annex, Chappell Industrial Building, which was completed in May 1907, the Lamar Hall Dormitory, which was ready for use September 9, 1908. (The college library, which then contained 4,000 volumes, was located in the main building.)"

"However, in 1928 the number of buildings had increased to eighteen. In 1917 Ennis Hall was erected. The main college building was destroyed by fire December 8, 1924. It was replaced by the new auditorium which was completed in the fall of 1926. The Lamar Hall Dormitory was renamed Terrell Hall. A new administration and class-room building was constructed and named Parks Hall.

The Arts Building and the two Annexes to the Arts Building were erected shortly after the completion of the Richard B. Russell Auditorium. Terrell Annex A was completed in 1922 and Terrell Annex B and Terrell Annex C were ready for use in the fall of 1924. In the fall of 1925 a new heating plant was constructed. Until the erection of Miller Bell Hall and Miller Bell Annex in 1928 the Horne and Newell Houses had been used to accommodate the students. The college library, which contained 12,500 bound volumes, was moved into the basement of Terrell Annex A.

"On the Northeastern corner of the campus the Alumnae Association erected to the memory of Dr. Parks a new hospital, which is called Parks Memorial Hospital.

"Government Square was acquired by the college and converted into a recreation park for the students. The class of 1919 made the first payment and the President, without financial aid from the state, succeeded in raising the money with which to meet the remaining payments.

"Not only has the institution increased in size," continued Dr. Beeson, "but also the development in its scholastic attainments is outstanding evidence of its growth. The Georgia College for Women has been a pioneer in many forms of education which are now becoming more popular, and are generally of service to the state of Georgia."

Dr. William T. Wynn spoke at the Vesper service Thursday evening, November 7th. His vivid talk took us on a tour throughout Europe. He listed many things that had surprised him in his travels through Europe. "Most notable among the things I had not expected to find," said Dr. Wynn in his talk, "were the absence of any tall buildings and the scarcity of poverty, real poverty, among the people."

MR. HARRIS SPEAKS AT VESPER

A beautiful Vesper service was held Sunday evening, November 17. Willie Baker presided over the service. Musical numbers besides the organ prelude by Theo Hotch were the vocal solo by Ila Cade Williams and the violin solo by Emily Campbell. Mr. Harris, the pastor of the Milledgeville Presbyterian church, used as the theme for his intensely interesting talk, "The Bible, the Book of Books."

LAMBDA PSI OMEGA HELD REGULAR MEETING

On November 6th, the Mathematics Club held its regular monthly meeting. The meeting was called to order and presided over by Myrtle Lynch, President. After the roll call and reading of the minutes a short but important business session was held. It was decided that the club should adopt the Greek letters on the Mathematics Club pin for the name of the club. It was also decided that the club should have club stationery, the club pin being used as the seal on the paper.

The meeting was then turned over to Leona Tarpley, chairman of the program committee. The program was so interesting and charmingly presented that many expressed the opinion that it was the most entertaining program they had ever attended at a club meeting.

Did you know that I was equal to 3? That a cat has 6 legs? That C of the ABC company has died and that we are still figuring on who beat the cemetery? If not, you're missing half the fun of getting educated. If you're interested in Mathematics, come out and help us get modernly mathematical!

ARMISTICE DAY PROGRAM

The World Fellowship Committee of the Y. W. C. A. sponsored a program given in chapel on Friday morning November 8th, in celebration of Armistice Day. The theme of the program was world peace and world-wide brotherhood. The part America has played in the struggle for peace was effectively brought out and several discussions were given on the movement for world peace.

Those taking part were: Mildred McWhorter, chairman of the committee, Helen Agnew, Edith Strand, Lizzie May Gammage and Mary Elliot.

COLLEGE PUBLICATIONS AND THE ALUMNAE

The Corinthian Staff of 1928-29 realized that its publication was lacking in one respect especially, that it had no connecting link with the alumnae of G. S. C. W. Consequently, an Alumnae section was set apart for publishing literary contributions of the graduates of this college. In addition, all Alumnae, who had shown marked interest in The Corinthian while students, were placed on the mailing list.

The Corinthian staff of this year wishes to extend the scope of the Alumnae section, making it a more vital channel of communication between Alumnae and their Alma Mater.

DORCUS RUCKER, Editor-in-Chief.

The Colonnade Staff wishes to welcome the Alumnae again to the campus.

We feel that each graduate has a place here. We are interested in where you are and what you are doing and your friends here and elsewhere are just as interested as we are. It is through the Alumnae page in the Colonnade that a lot of your friends learn these things.

The Alumnae Association edits the Alumnae page, so be sure to let the Association know where you are and what you are doing so we can let others know.

PLANS BEING MADE FOR JUNIOR BANQUET

One of the most enjoyable features of the Home Coming festivities is the annual Junior banquet. It will be given the night after Thanksgiving, November 29, at the Baldwin Hotel. All members of the present Junior class are invited as well as the members of the Senior class who were Sophomores last year. Invitations have been sent to the members of the Sophomore Normal class of '29 who are not back at College this year and it is hoped that a large number of them will come. Four committee chairmen have been elected and are as follows: Entertainment, Ann Hicks; Decoration, Bertha Johnson; Invitation, Christine Deekle; Menu, Mildred Bozman.

EDUCATION WEEK OBSERVED AT G. S. C. W.

During the week of November 9th, through November 17th, G. S. C. W. observed Education Week by a number of programs.

Miss Annie Jo Moye was in charge of the program on Tuesday morning, the theme of which was "Worthy Home Membership." Miss Vera Hunt, of Cedartown, led the devotional.

Those who took part on the program were: Ida Cade Williams, of Greenville, Ala.; Martha Archer, of Cartersville; Grace Grey, Manchester; Gertrude Gilmore, McDonough; Margaret Cunningham, Decatur; Louise Neal, Wrightsville; Mary Mitchell, Greensboro; Doris Bush, Barnesville; Jewell Daniel, Marietta; Vasta Smith, Barnesville; Carolyn Tigner, Greensboro; Blanche McLesky, Hartwell; Elsie Stanley Greensboro; Myrtle Jenkins, Sand ersville; and Anne Parham, College Park.

Miss Margaret Coyne, Atlanta, was in charge of the program Wednesday morning. "Vocational Talks" were the subjects of the talks made by Idelle Collins Atworth; Fannie McLellan, Dalton; Marge Coyne, Atlanta. In a play contrasting the old and the modern schools those taking part were: Ruth Jordan, Tunnel Hill;

PICNIC

On Saturday afternoon, November 10th, the "Little Log Cabin" in Government Square fairly beamed with joy and the pines echoed and re-echoed with the sound of merry voices. You ask the reason? Why, it was the picnic given for the girls who didn't go home.

The afternoon was spent in accordance with the various moods of the picnickers. The adventurous minded explored the many little paths. Those interested in research tried to find the thousand poison ivy plants. Those of a domestic turn of mind brought their hocked rugs along and worked under the trees, while others had the thrill of tobogganing as they slid down the hill on the pine straw. While one group on the top of the hill was playing games, another at the foot of the hill was discussing the advantages of poultry raising. That old saying, "the best is yet to come," certainly proved true in this case, in the form of a delicious picnic lunch with steaming hot coffee.

As the picnickers climbed back up the hill I think they agreed that it wasn't so bad to have been left behind after all.

Austelle Adams, Royston; Lorice Canoford, Zebulan; Alvaretta Kennan, Statesboro; Sara Cross, Conyers; Annie Sue Wells, Woodbury; Mary Rogers, Gainesville; Kathleen Hatcher, Waynesboro; Frances Allen, Bamberg, S. C.; Bee Howard, Washington, Ga.; and Robbie McLendon, Thomasville.

In charge of the program Friday was Miss Anne Hicks, Rome, Ga. The theme of the program was "Wise Use of Leisure and Health Education." Pearl Hackett, Macon, read the scripture; the four glee clubs sang a prayer hymn. The talks were on the subjects "Wise Use of Leisure" by Anne Hicks; "The Uplift of Body Through the Soul" by Iverson Dews, Decatur; girls from the physical educational department of the school gave an exhibition of folk dances. Then Mary Elliot, Norcross, spoke on "The Problem Child." After the singing of the song "America the Beautiful" by the student body, Dr. Harding of the Episcopal church ended the program with a prayer.

VISION

Some faces are bleak and gray. Life has beaten out all joy and animation. Some are crafty and sly. Some have lines of selfishness and greed etched upon them by the unswerving hand of experience. But some through life's vicissitudes and trials glow with the inner light which "never shone on land or sea." These have kept the trust, have held the vision.

It has so often been said that our college is founded on a vision, has been built by a vision, and grows and nurtures itself on a vision. That vision is one of willing service to the womanhood of Georgia and the vision is that of the three men who have stood at the head of the college and guided it through its growth and progress.

To keep the trust is no easy matter. It is pleasant to say "yes." It is hard to say "no." Development means a clinging to high ideals no matter how stormy the way may be. Often it seems that standards may perhaps be too high that goals may be impossible to reach, but these men have set their eyes on a high vision of worth and good, and from this vision has bloomed a reality of noble character, of high endeavor, of courage in the face of trouble, and of zeal against great odds, in the lives of the graduates of the college.

The campus is beautiful. The velvet grass touches noble buildings. Stately trees throw their flickering shadows over rich flower beds and dignified walks. Repose and work broad together over the whole. But better than this outer phase is the inner character building that is going on steadfastly, purposefully, and continually. Life is being enriched, ideals built, purposes strengthened, and for this work we thank our college and those who saw this vision of nobler womanhood and kept the trust.

GOVERNMENT SQUARE PARK

In the past two years there has been a great addition to the pleasure of the G. S. C. W. girls and to the beauties of the college. This improvement was the development of Government Square Park, known to the Alumnae as Nesbit Woods. Although this property has been the possession of the college for some years, it was not until the last two years that attention was called to the possibility of developing this park.

Originally, it was one of the four squares which the government owned. The plot was deeded to Milledgeville for the benefit of G. M. C. Later it was sold to G. S. C. W. for $7,000.

It lay undeveloped for a number of years, and the class of 1920 left a sum of money for the purpose of building a hut. Last spring, Dr. Beeson remembered that this money had been left, so he met with Mr. Fowler and a committee and drew up the plan for the hut. A landscape gardener was called to come and look over the land and see what could be done.

The boundaries were extended to where they were supposed to be, and the under brush was cleared away, and the idle trails and bridges were made. The entrance was fixed later. Plants were put there and the plan is to add some every year until all the native plants of Georgia are in the park. Flowers, shrubs and trees were planted by the different clubs on the campus. An old spinning wheel and other relics have been put in the hut.

Several days ago, there was presented in chapel a most enjoyable program about the park. Dorothy Jay gave the history of the hut, followed by several suggestions on the keeping of the hut by Vera Hunt. Ann Hicks gave a talk on the avoiding of poisonivy, Margaret Cunningham introduced Mrs. Hines, who wrote the song, "My Little Cab in the Pines," the song was presented by a group of girls.

SOME OF THE SIGNIFICANT FEATURES OF THE NINTH INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PSYCHOLOGY

By Euri Belle Bolton

The International Congress of Psychology met in America for the first time at Yale University, New Haven, Conn., from September 1st, through September 7th, 1929.

Some of the most recent findings of research in practically every field of psychology were discussed in the many papers presented in the regular morning sessions and in the informal symposia held in the afternoon. The morning programs included sessions on the Theory and History of Psychology, Methodology and Technique, Child Development, Experimental Psychology, Physiological Psychology, Comparative Psychology, Abnormal and Clinical Psychology, Personality, Educational Psychology, Social Psychology, and Industry and Personnel. The following phases of psychology were discussed in the symposia: Animal Behavior, Applications of Psychology to Methods of Teaching, Effects of Drugs, Industrial Psychology, Maladjustments, Psychogalvanic Reflex, Theoretical Psychology, Character and Personality, General Intelligence, Legal Psychology, Meaning and Symbolism, Psychophysics, Eye-Movements, Laboratory and Teaching Devices, Memory and Learning, Psychology of Music, Race Differences, The Nature of G (or Intelligence as conceived by Spearman), Personnel

THANKSGIVING

As I gaze upon the splendor Of the autumn's russet gold, My heart seems strangely gladdened By the beauty I behold.

As I watch the dying sun-god Set the western sky aflame, My pulse beats quicker, and within me Throbs a joy I can not name.

As I catch some fleeting vision, See the light of friendship gleam, My soul exults; I feel that life Is something more than just a dream.

Lost in the glory of such moments, I can forget a world of strife, And breathe a prayer of thankful-ness Unto our God to love and life!

ELIZABETH PASCHAL

Psychology, Statistical Method, Sleep, Aesthetics, Mental Tests, Motivation, Reflexes, Religious Psychology, Sensation and Perception and other aspects of psychology discussed in the morning sessions. Because of such an extensive program it was necessary for each person to choose the sessions and symposia of greatest interest and attend only those.

One of the most important morning sessions attended by the writer was on Child Development. Karl Buhler, of Vienna, was chairman of this group. His attractive wife, Charlotte Buhler, who has recently published a book on childhood, contributed much to the discussions of papers. The first paper presented to this group was by Dr. Gesell who directs the Yale Psycho-Clinic. Dr. Gesell's contributions to the study of the mental development of the preschool child have been so significant that he had one of the largest audiences present at any session except the general lectures. He pointed out the value of simple, descriptive and photographic methods of studying the growth of children. In many investigations he has demonstrated the soundness of his practical viewpoint.

One of the most interesting papers on the study of the child was that by Kurt Lewin, of Berlin. He illustrated his thesis that the learning of children is not a random process that is entirely by trial and error with an excellent moving picture of a little child trying to sit down on a low block or stool for the first time. The child walked up to the stool many times and turned to sit on it, but missed his mark and sat down at least ten or twelve inches from it. After such a failure he would walk around the stool in a circle for several times looking at it; then he would turn to sit down and when he missed it again he would get up, still more puzzled about how to get himself to sit on the stool, and walk rapidly around and around it. After many trials he succeeded in making a successful response, and his spontaneous pleasure over the feat was delightful to see. Lewin suggests that the responses made in this learning obey definite laws of configuration or insight. The report showed the possibility of using the moving picture as a means of investigating the learning of children.

Miss Goodenough, of the University of Minnesota, where one of the best American laboratories for the study of pre-school children is located, presented a paper on the behavior of young children to this group. The symposium on Character and Personality was one of the most interesting of the symposia attended. This division was directed by F. H. Allport, of Syracuse, N. Y., who has written one of the most widely used texts in Social Psychology. There were so many papers for this symposium that it was necessary to divide the group and appoint a second chairman. The great interest manifested in the study of problems of Child Psychology and of Social Psychology is an indication of the very practical trends of present-day psychology. Other sections and symposia of especial interest were those on Educational Psychology, under the direction of E. L. Thorndike, of Columbia, and on the Nature of Intelligence and on Memory and Learning.

Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, President of the Ninth International Congress of Psychology, was one of the most interesting persons at the Congress. He was a student at Wundt's psychological laboratory, which was established at Leipzig, Germany in 1879. This was the first laboratory ever established for the study of psychology and Cattell was there intermittently from 1881 to 1886. The

THE TEA ROOM

Friday afternoon!

Brown skirts and white waists hurrying to the familiar haunt of all college girls. Seniors strolling with their accustomed dignity to that spot. Matrons sauntering in that same direction. All-knowing faculty members walking leisurely toward one place. All roads lead to the college tea room where each may enjoy genial company, laughing faces, and above all—food.

On Friday afternoons the tea room is under the direction of the G. S. C. W. Alumnae. By this means the members of the Alumnae Association are striving to raise funds.

Thus far the project has proven most successful in every detail. Numbers of people are served between the hours of four-thirty and six-thirty. Because of the hearty cooperation and enthusiastic support of Alumnae members and college students, results have been very beneficial and an illuminating future for the Association treasurer has been predicted.

The business managers of the Alumnae Tea Room will appreciate your patronage henceforth. It is hoped that brown skirts and white waists will continue to hurry there, that Seniors will stroll with dignity, that matrons will saunter and that faculty members will walk leisurely, all groups remembering that all roads lead to the tea room from four-thirty to six-thirty o'clock on Friday afternoons.

THE HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

The Home Economics Club has started the plan of work for the year 1929-30 under the supervision of new officers who were elected last spring. They are: Idelle Collins, president; Isabelle Tappan, vice-president; Helen Holsenbeck, secretary and Lora Laine, treasurer.

Last year the Club carried on some very interesting and successful work. Among the things accomplished were: the furnishing of one of the rooms in the Parks Memorial Hospital, the managing of the Tea Room on Thursday afternoons, and the sending of two delegates, Mabel Underwood and Helen Shetter to Boston to the National Home Economics Association last summer. Vivian McLendon and Idelle Collins were also sent as delegates to Savannah last spring.

The Club is undertaking to work out a plan for a combination Tea and Lunch room this year.

THE MATHEMATICS CLUB

The Mathematics Club, Lambda Psi Omega, has for its aim a threefold purpose; to stimulate an interest in Mathematics among the students of the college; to broaden the members' knowledge of the field of mathematics; and to promote social activity among mathematical students of the college.

The club is at present headed by the following officers: President, Myrtice Lynch; vice-president, Leone Tarply; secretary, Sara Callahan; and treasurer, Helen Leggett.

The club desires to give service not only to its present members but also to the Alumnae. It has already done something in this field by sending material for the organization of high school mathematics clubs. The Lambda Psi Omega is pleased to aid in solving the problems arising in the various schools of the state.

ENGLISH I. CLUB

With Dr. Hunter as faculty advisor, several of the students in English I. met in October to form an English Club. The purpose of the Club is to cultivate a worthy appreciation of words; to stimulate, by careful study of the art of masters, a desire to paint beautiful word pictures; to cultivate a desire to weave word fabrics allowing no drop stitches.

In the club programs, noted writers and their works are studied. Several very enjoyable Tuesday afternoons have been spent in this worthwhile manner, and the club promises to be the source of other equally enjoyable activities especially in the library which is soon to be installed.

The officers of the Club: President—Pauline Reynolds. Vice-President—Lois Wise. Secretary—Frances Crawford. Chairman of the Program Committee—Marion Jones.

CLUB NEWS

LITERARY GUILD

The purpose of the Literary Guild is two-fold. It aims, first, to bring the Juniors and Seniors who are majoring and minoring in English, into a pleasant, friendly social contact with each other and the English faculty. And secondly, it aims to inform the members of current literature and to stimulate an interest for the best that is produced.

In order to carry out these aims, the Guild holds two regular meetings a month, one being for the entire group, and one for separate groups that study special types of contemporary literature. There are four of these groups. The short story, directed by Miss Crowell; poetry, by Miss Steele; the novel by Dr. Hunter; and the drama, by Miss Smith. Each of these groups makes its own selection from its type of work; and as a result, the programs are interesting and varied.

Miss Crowell is the faculty advisor for the Guild and under her leadership the Guild sponsors the Corinthian, which is the literary magazine of the campus and which produces only the best creative work of the students.

Plans at present are working towards the Christmas program which is usually the dramatization, or some other interesting presentation of old English Christmas customs.

It is hoped that during this year the Guild will be able to raise some money, probably by the presentation of a play, in order to increase its library of current fiction.

The officers of the Guild are: Willie Baker, president; Ruth Hightower, secretary and treasurer; and Austelle Adams, chairman of the social committee.

MRS. KEY VOICES OPINION OF STUDENTS

"My girls have shown a greater spirit of loyalty and co-operation this year than I have ever seen them exhibit. And I think this is true of the student body as a whole." These were the words uttered by Mrs. Leila A. Key, matron of Terrell B. and C. Mrs. Key went on to explain that the girls had shown more interest in self-government by taking affairs in their own hands and correcting the mistakes and blunders of their fellow students. In her opinion the older girls seem to feel a greater responsibility toward the younger ones.

"As for our new girls—they are entering in to everything with the very finest spirit. In one respect they surpass all other classes, and that is in their neatness of dress. Our Freshmen are a lovely bunch of girls."

her work with the club. Mrs. A. M. Ingram and Mrs. H. B. Harmon gave very interesting talks about the Eggleston Henrietta Hospital for children. This was a most enjoyable meeting. The November meeting will be a luncheon at the Wine-coff Hotel.

SCIENCE CLUB

The aim of the science club is to permeate the interests of science among the student body, to broaden their knowledge of science as applied to every day life, and to promote social activity among science students of the G. S. C. W.

It is open to those Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors, Majoring or Minorng in science, or those who have the equivalent.

The club was organized October 27, 1923, at 5:40 o'clock in Parks Hall, Room 10, Dr. Beeson acting as chairman. The name aims of the club, the time, and place of meeting were discussed, and officers were elected, Martha Story being its first president, the others have been respectively:

Lena Parker, Mae Evans, Rebecca Higginson, Elizabeth Greene, Marie Hancock, Julia Reese, Elizabeth Guinre and Blanche Marshall.

The officers for this semester are, Blench Marshall, President; Miriam Rustin, Vice-President and Chairman of Program Committee; Ruth Jordan, Secretary and Treasurer; Martha Bass, Chairman of Social Committee; Carolyn B. Scott, Chairman of Publicity.

The Science Club plans to sponsor an illustrated bird lecture later on in the season. Last year the club planted shrubs, and vines in Government Square Parks, around the Cabin, and is planning to plant some very rare bulbs there, this year. The bulbs, were furnished by Mrs. L. S. Fowler of Milledgeville. The club also gave the furniture that is so useful to students, on their hikes and parties in the "Hut."

The club extends a cordial invitation to all who wish to become members, and assures to all an interesting and profitable means of spending an hour every other Tuesday afternoon.

HISTORY CLUB PLANS FOR ENSUING YEAR

The History Club has elected the following officers for the semester beginning September, 1929: President, Idalene Cosby, Elberton; Vice-

EDUCATION CLUB

The Education Club or Pi-Phi-Psi, which is the newest and yet the largest club on the campus, is composed of one hundred eleven members. The membership comes chiefly from the Junior and Senior classes with a few Sophomores who are majoring in Education.

The symbols Pi-Phi-Psi stand for Education, Philosophy, and Psychology. The purpose of the club is "to develop, encourage, and further a greater interest in and to stimulate a desire to acquire a constant growing knowledge of Education, Philosophy, and Psychology as may be applied to the establishment of a better way of life for humanity."

The Education Club sponsored Education Week November 11-17. Various programs were given in chapel comparing the old school with the new, education for the wise use of leisure, education for health and safety, and education for worthy home membership.

The officers of the club are: President Alvaretta Kenan, Statesboro; Vice-President, Ruth Lord, Jefferson; Secretary, Mary Mitcham, Durand; Chairman of Social Committee, Katherine Calloway, Talbotton; Chairman of Publicity Committee, Helen Leggett, Waycross; Chairman of Program Committee, Ruth Lord, Jefferson; and Faculty Advisor, Dr. Webber.

At various programs of the club we have had some very interesting talks. Mr. Thaxton spoke on "Georgia School Laws" and Dr. Webber spoke on "Some Aspects of Abnormal Psychology."

President, Catherine Duggan, Dawson; Secretary, Mary Bohannon, Newman; Treasurer, Frances Tarply, Leesburg; Chairman of Program Committee, Dorcas Rucker, Alpharetta. The various committees have been appointed and are at work.

The biggest project for the year is the Georgia History Museum which is creating much interest over the state.

At the various meetings the club is planning to study historical fiction, such as "Drums," "The Holy Lover," and other books of this type.

HEALTH CLUB

The Health Club is one of the youngest organizations on the campus, having been organized in the spring of 1927 with Caroline Cheney as its first president.

The club was organized by the majors and minors of the Health Department with a threefold purpose in view, namely:

To embody and radiate health as far as possible on our campus through wholesome recreation; to cultivate courtesy, helpfulness, joyousness, which are every individual's inheritance; to secure a workable scientific basis of the fundamentals in health education. With these things kept in mind the members have striven to make this one of the best and most interesting clubs on our campus.

At the last meeting of the club in May, 1929 the following were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Pres. Mary Elliott. 1st. Vice-Pres. Ann Hicks. 2nd. Vice-Pres. Faye Paulk. Sec'y. Annie Joe Moya. Treas. Margo Coyne.

It is the hope of the club that through its work during the coming year that all the members of this "healthy" institution will realize more fully than ever before that the "utmost gladness" in life comes through a sane training in physical, mental, and spiritual health.

G. S. C. W. ALUMNAE CLUBS OF ATLANTA ENTERTAINED

Mrs. A. M. Ingram and Mrs. H. B. Harmon were hostesses to the Georgia State College for Women Alumnae Club of Atlanta, Saturday, November 26th, 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. M. G. S. C. W. For The Alumnae

THE ALUMNA For G. S. C. W.

FROM ONE ALUMNAE TO ANOTHER

Hello Girls:

Remember a short time ago in 1915 when we all had to search for our collar buttons each morning, don brown skirts and cherry red sweaters, then scamper out to breakfast at 7:20 A. M. Thus our collegiate day began and even so today the young women are rising to the occasion about 7:17 A. M., while some customs and traditions remain the same, as the brown skirt and the hour for breakfast, we move along with the age at G. S. C. W.

We who are now here cordially invite you to travel along the highways that lead to Milledgeville and G. S. C. W. and see for yourself your Alma Mater in 1929. Why not make it this Thanksgiving Day?

CORNELIA CHAPPELL

FROM THE ALUMNAE COMMITTEE OF THE Y. W. C. A.

Now that Thanksgiving is almost here, we are looking forward to the home coming of you Alumnae more than ever. We are now completing plans for those days which will be entirely too short for the many things we would like to do. How wonderful it would be if you all could come back at this time, and how interesting it would be to hear each one of you tell of your experiences out in the world.

The Y. W. C. A. today is a powerful and far-reaching organization whose roots are deeply bedded in the heritage of loyalty and co-operation which we have from you older sisters. Your works of today and days gone by still lend encouragement and inspiration to us.

We welcome you back to G. S. C. W., our school. May you have the best time this Thanksgiving that you have had in a long time. We want this to be a banner season. Won't you write to your class mates and then all of your plan to be back together this Thanksgiving? They will be just as glad to renew old friendships and talk over the old school days as you will be. Then together, we can all gain inspiration and renew our courage for the tasks which confront us from day to day. With the knowledge of what others of our acquaintance have done in his service, we can better face life and really live by our Y. W. C. A. song. "And ye, who would serve the King,

And loyally Him obey,
In the consecrate silence know
That the challenge still holds today.

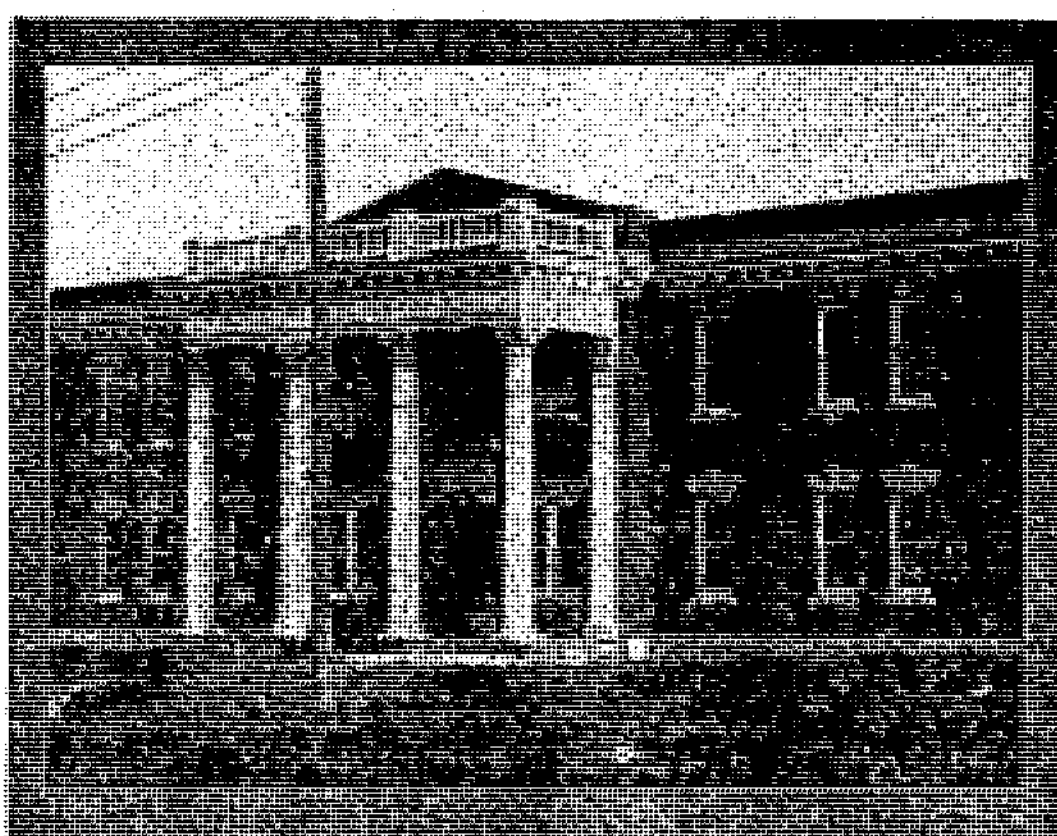

Follow, follow the Glean
Standards of worth e'er all the earth
Follow, follow the Glean
Of the Light that shall bring the dawn."

Sincerely,
PAUNEE RIGSBY,
Chairman Alumnae Committee

ALUMNAE AND STUDENT RELATIONSHIP

One of the most wholesome relations, I think, that exist here at G. S. C. is that relationship between the students and alumnae. It partakes of the nature of a family with the younger sister appreciating the guidance given by the older sister.

The Alumnae are characterized by a helpfulness of spirit and an encouraging manner that find expression in all the enterprises they undertake with the students. The students, on the other hand, are desirous of the help and encouragement given by the Alumnae and are most grateful for it. The students appreciate more than they will ever be able to express, while they are students—the enthusiastic co-operation and personal interest that the Alumnae mean to them. This expression will come when they, too, become Alumnae.

The togetherness of both groups is intensified by the realization that G. S. C. serves both equally, loyally, and unceasingly.

TO THE ALUMNAE OF GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN FROM ALUMNAE MATRONS

Thanksgiving Day will soon be here, so we send a call, a very special invitation to all G. S. C. W. girls to "Come Home" and joyfully observe it with us. We need to renew old friendships.

To the Alumnae who can't "Come Home" this year we unroll the scroll of memory and with thankful hearts picture 'round our dormitory and campus a merry group of dear friends.

I am sure you share with me a sense of profound gratitude that we have been permitted to enjoy the benefits of G. S. C. W. They were given to us as a special gift and we welcome this day to express our deep gratitude to our great Provider.

Every day's Thanksgiving but today we celebrate around the dormitory altar with enough on every plate.

Every day's Thanksgiving but today is best of all
For we gather 'round the table in response to Alumnae's call

Every day's Thanksgiving but today the friendship ties
Gently draw us close together where the old dormitory lies.

Do Dr. Beeson ask the blessing
And House-Mothers say "Amen!"
Thanksgiving day is dawning
With the Alumnae home again.

GREETINGS FROM LAST YEAR'S PRESIDENT

Once upon a time an acorn fell up the head of a little chick. He thought the sky was falling and in great haste ran to tell his friends the news. Was he not carrying his message to Garria? The story seems so simple but after all was his task easy?

Do you ever feel that your sky is falling and that to carry the message is impossible? We all do I imagine. To me the one thing that helps most, matters not how hard the job, is that indescribable "something" which my Alma Mater gave me. Aren't you a proud possessor of that "something"? Shall we ever let it go?

Since leaving the Campus I find myself comparing G. S. C. with everything I see and to everyone with whom I come in contact. I have found no buildings more beautiful than ours, no campus more lovely, no students more responsive and fine, no teachers more earnest and modern in their thoughts and methods, no comparable financial management, no helpers so true-blue, or no President more lovable and more desirous of carrying on to greater and better things—I am proud of My Alma Mater.

Greetings to each of you. How I would love to be there for Home-Coming time. Did the Freshmen pick the turkeys?
Most sincerely yours,
GUSSIE H. TABB

TO THE ALUMNAE OF GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

From Alumnae Matrons
As one of the three Alumnae "House Mothers" now at Georgia State College for Women, I wish to send greetings to you of our group who are scattered abroad through out this and other states of these United States, and to extend to you a most cordial invitation to come back to the college for a visit.

The place has grown so marvelous in every way, that if you have not visited us recently, you may not fully realize that it is the same place, but even so, we will be very happy to have you and I know that it will give you pleasure to come back and see the wonderful changes that have been made. I think it will strengthen your love for and your loyalty to your Alma Mater to see what she is doing for our Georgia girls; how she considers and meets their needs physically, mentally, and spiritually.

Especially do I wish that this little message may reach some of the members of the class of 1904, for you are my own class mates and dear friends. How I wished that we might celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our graduation by a class reunion at the college last June. Although that opportunity is past, I am looking forward to such a reunion in the future. Please, won't you make as special effort to do this?

I could have all fourteen in Miller Bell Hall (this would delight my girls) if you'd come, or, if you prefer for the sake of old times to do so, we "Hall girls" could go back to Atkinson and the "Mason girls" could stay at Mansion and we'd all visit together and recollect and live again in memory the joys and sorrows (?), the bitter and the sweet of our school days at G. N. I. C. Girls, now I know that Dr. Chappell spoke truly in his baccalaureate address to our class when he quoted that sentence from Virgil's Aeneid, "O socii, haec nobis meminisse olim juvabit!"

In closing this message to our Alumnae, I wish to give expression to my believe in and hope for the future of our college, and to urge each and every graduate to remember the motto of which, as students, we were so often reminded, "Freely ye have received, freely give," for it is only in proportion as we, the Alumnae, give ourselves to our work, what ever it may be, that the real purpose and ideals of our college are realized.

MARIE FORRESTER MARTIN
WELCOME ALUMNAE
You're welcome, dear Alumnae
To the campus of G. S. C.,
Back to your Alma Mater
That you've served so faithfully.

Back to the heart of the school
That you call your joy and pride.
You've fought for her, you've boosted her,
On her you have relied.

We welcome each and every one
That has given this school her part,
To each that calls this school her own
And binds it to her heart.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PRESIDENT 1928-29

To the Alumnae of the Georgia State College for Women;

In looking back over the year's work, the time seems to have been so short and our accomplishments so small. The same policies and principles of the Association as here-to-fore have been upheld.

The affairs of the Association are vested in the hands of the Executive Committee, which is composed of the four officers on the campus and two members at large who are appointed by the President. This committee has met often and has been faithful and untiring in its efforts. Mr. Fowler has been called in many times for his advice and has helped in an ex-officio capacity.

A committee composed of Marguerite Jackson, Thelma Holbrook, and Blanch Hamby was appointed last summer to represent the Alumnae during the summer session. A reception was given in the Marvin Parks Memorial Hospital for the summer school students.

At the first faculty meeting in September, 1928, Dr. Beeson announced that the President of the Alumnae Association would give part of her time to the work of the Association, and consequently, would not have the regular teaching load. He also lent a room in Parks Hall for an Alumnae office.

At Dr. Beeson's suggestion and through the courtesy of the Colonnade editorial staff, the Association has edited an Alumnae page in the Colonnade this year. A committee, Katherine Scott, Marguerite Jackson, Mamie Padgett, and Gussie Tabb, with the help of many others took charge of this. The Thanksgiving or Home Coming issue was edited entirely by the Association and 2,000 copies were mailed to Alumnae.

The Alumnae took charge of plans for Home Coming, November 28-29. A program was given in chapel Friday morning. A tour of the campus was made immediately afterward, and in the afternoon a tea was given for the visiting Alumnae in the college tea room.

On December 29 and June 8, flowers were sent to Mrs. Parks for the cemetery. A beautiful note of appreciation has been received from Mrs. Parks.

This year the memorial rooms in the hospital have been marked. The money was raised by proceeds from three picture shows, a play, Monsieur Beausire which was directed by Katherine Scott and played by a caste of Alumnae, and the profits from the college tea room one afternoon a week. Volunteers from the Alumnae assisted Lucille Dunaway, a student of the tea room class and an Alumnae, in the tea room, on Tuesday afternoons during this semester.

Marguerite Jackson, Rosabel Burch, Artie B. Carter Lowe, and Gussie Tabb attended the regional meeting of the American Alumni Council which was held in Macon this spring. The committee was made to realize more than ever the importance of a well organized Alumnae Association. Our Association is now a member of this Council.

The administration of the college has stood back of and advised with the Executive Committee in all of its undertakings. It has helped financially in the following ways.

1. Paid a part time secretary for the president of the Association.
2. Furnished stamps, stationery, stenols, mimeographing, and printing.
3. Paid expenses of delegates to the regional meeting of the American Alumni Council.

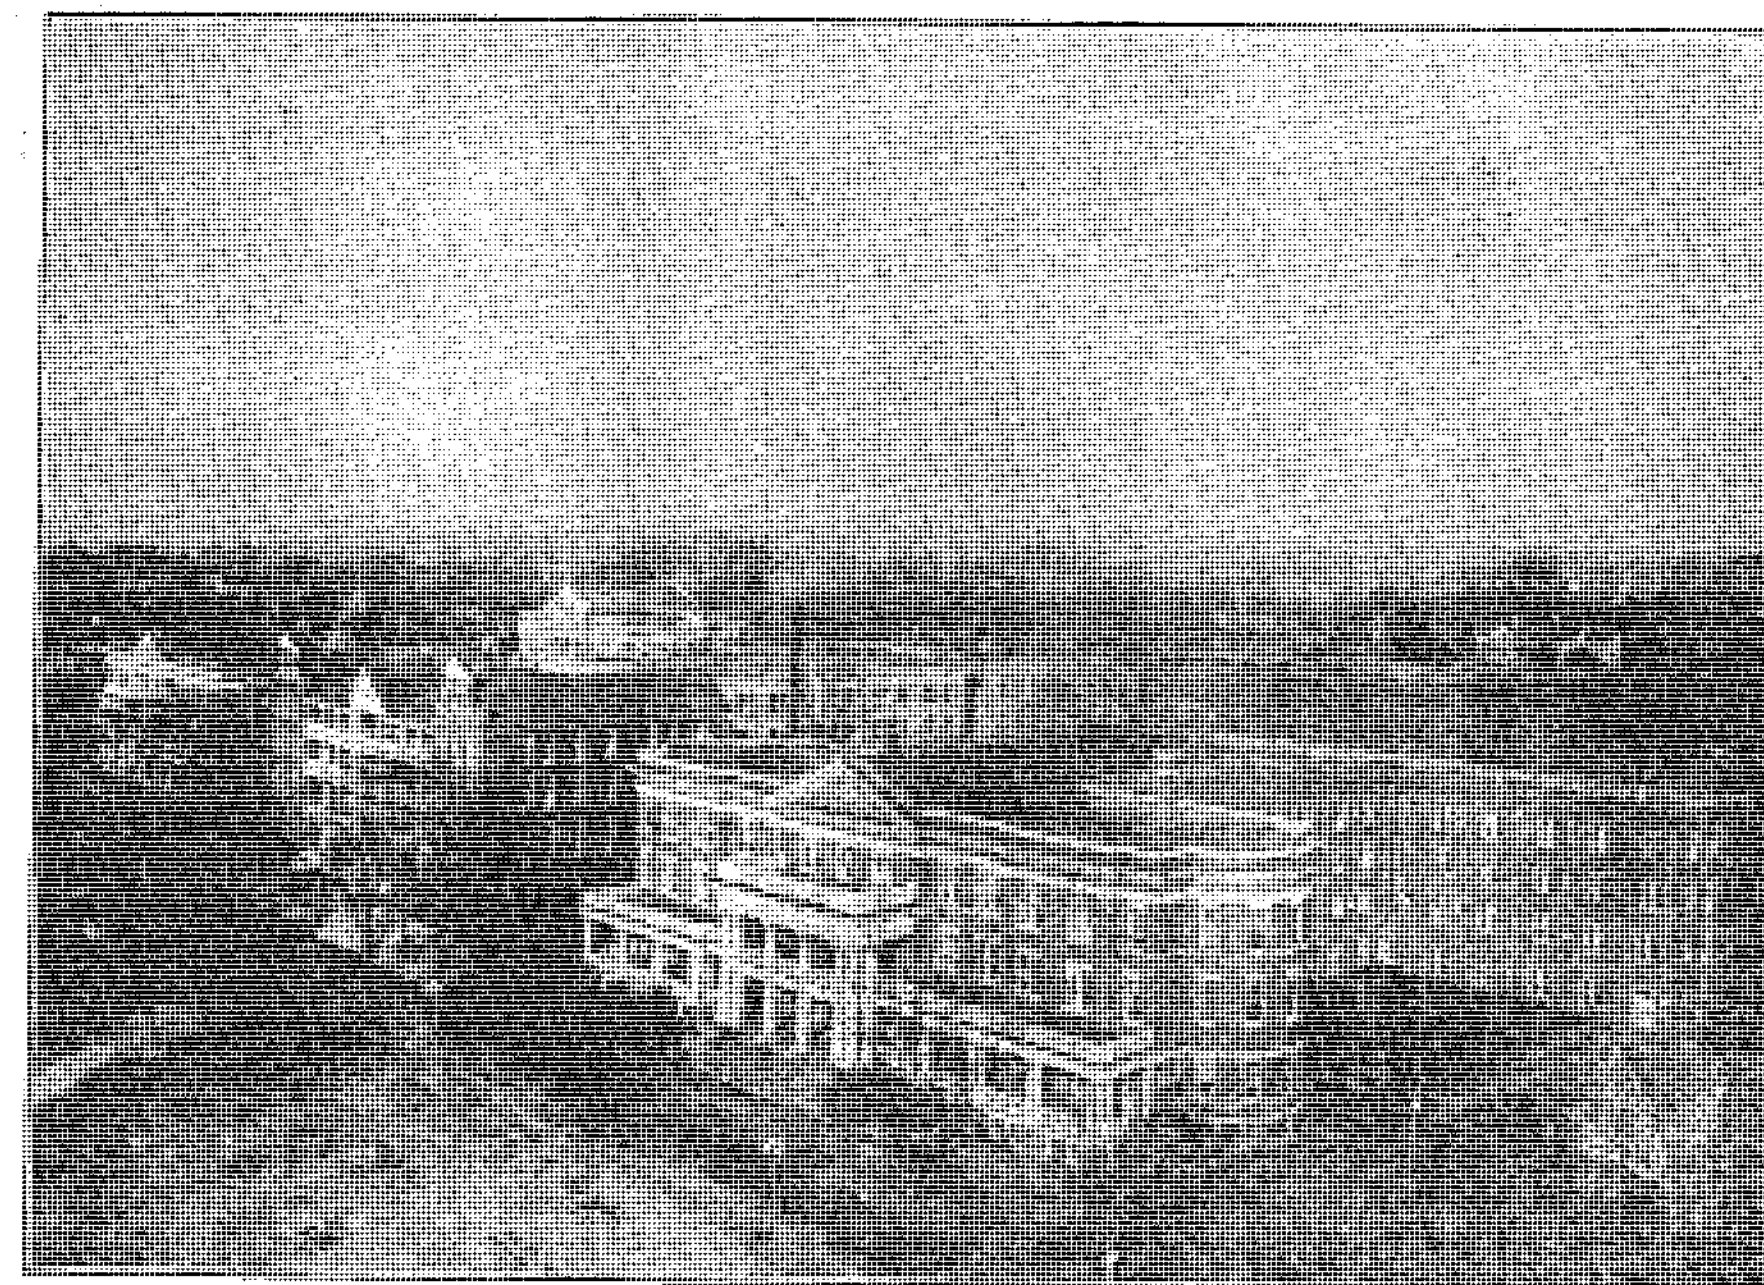

4. That the Association continue to sponsor the college tea room one afternoon a week.
5. Paid the Colonnade staff for a page in each issue of the paper.
6. Entertained the Baldwin county Alumnae at supper.
7. Entertained the Alumnae at supper.
8. Entertained the Alumnae at the annual banquet.

The same plan of organization, that of District Director, District Chairmen, and County Clubs, has been followed as much as possible. Efforts have been made to keep in touch with the county organizations by correspondence, by mailing the Colonnade to all sections of the state and to the Out-of-State clubs (This was done by the district chairmen), and by personal contact. The president attended a meeting of the Savannah club and the Statesboro club in April. A supper was sponsored by the Alumnae and given at the college in honor of the Baldwin county Alumnae and as usual the Baldwin county club has engineered the annual banquet.

In looking forward toward the future work of the Association, the following recommendations were made.

1. That Dr. Beeson be made an honorary member of the Association.
2. That the Association strive to establish itself financially.
3. That, as soon as possible, there be established a project of some kind in which all of the State clubs can have a very definite part.
4. That the time for class reunions at the Commencement season be worked out for regular intervals of every four or five years and that this time be stressed while the students are on the campus.
5. That the Association work toward having an Alumnae Secretary in order to make our organization stronger.
6. That a representative of the Association be sent to the meetings of the Regional and American Alumni Council.

The less aid the letter, so this is going to be less—but before I say less, let me say a little more about the subject and what I want to say is this, in fact I want to ask a question—who started the style of giving mind semester finals? If that lady or gentleman should venture forth on this campus not fully armed with something like a cannon, he or she would be instantly mobbed, tarred and feathered, hanged, shot, and all other means of killing, death dying or dead.

Another question in my mind concerning these unnecessary evils that are so prevalent on this G. S. C. W. campus at present why do these terrible things have to come so near Thanksgiving? Who can be thankful with the unsatisfactory list staring you in the face? Its just about as pleasant as the thoughts of getting a tooth filled an taking castor oil!!! Pleasant thoughts, are they not?

Still another question arises—Why, when we have six days a week to go to classes, do all the teachers plan to give us exams on the same day. The plot thickens—not a glimmer of light, I fumble about in the dark, I cannot see the reason for such utter cruelty.

So my less is said—and I still wonder who started giving mid-semester finals—He shall be guilty of sending me to my Doom!!!

And one burns clear for days to be
And one for days that are."

It is so nice as general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. in our college to be an alumnae as well—to feel myself a part of G. N. I. C. so that I have cherished memories and yet can appreciate the rapid and sure progress that G. S. C. W. has made in the past few years.

So it is, in the Y. W. C. A. of our college. Priceless to me are the memories and associations of my Y. W. C. A. experiences when I was one of the "brownies." I kept a candle burning always in my heart as a celebration of the fellowship and inspiration of those days. I like to believe that it is the same candle which Katherine Tigner lighted for me from her larger candle on the night I was taken into the membership of fellow ship of the Young Women's Christian Association. In my heart, that night, was born a desire so strong that I think it was a prayer that my candle might ever be kept a glow. As Euri Belle Bolton and Georgia McKay and the other cabinet girls smilingly welcomed us in, my heart beat rapidly! I had a "sense of belonging."

That "sense of belonging" was always there when with other girls, I was allowed to share in the work of moving chairs in Atkinson Study day. The plot thickens—not a glimmer of light, I fumble about in the dark, I cannot see the reason for such utter cruelty.

So my less is said—and I still wonder who started giving mid-semester finals—He shall be guilty of sending me to my Doom!!!

MY THREE CANDLES

Annie Moore Daughtry
"I have three candles in my room
Slender and tall and white
Their tips are buds of fire bloom
That blossom in the night.

And one I light for memory
All steady as a star
And one burns clear for days to be
And one for days that are."

That "sense of belonging" was always there when with other girls, I was allowed to share in the work of moving chairs in Atkinson Study

Hall for Vespers, or selling ice cream to make money to send people to Elue Ridge, or again in my Senior year in cabinet meetings when we tackled our student problems.

In the flame of my candle of yesterday, I see also very vividly, the ever smiling encouragement of Miss Napier, our Y. W. C. A. advisor and Miss Tait, our first secretary.

Now I am sure that these memories are not peculiarly my own for all over Georgia, in the schoolroom, in the home, even as far as Africa and China, there are those "old girls" of G. N. I. C. and G. S. C. W. who like myself have still that "sense of belonging," that memory of Y. W. C. A. fellowship. This spirit makes the Alumnae who still keep a candle lighted for memories sake, apart of the Y. W. C. A. sisterhood with its ever widening circle of followers in the quest for "life in abundance."

My second candle whose flame is brightest just now burns for the intense joy and inspiration of our Y. W. C. A. that is today. Our campus radiates with the spirit of sharing of ideas and ideals, of working together as overeleven hundred of us are doing in "seeking to understand Jesus and to follow Him in His way of life."

There are moments too in nearly every day of the week when I see the far away dreamy look in the fine sincere eyes of some student on our campus that makes my candle "for the days to be" burn more brightly. That look of intellectual witfulness says to me that she is deaming of the future when the bond of harmonious fellowship and love by which we, as G. S. C. W. students and Alumnae are bound together, will envelope girls and women of every land and station and interest in life.

In the ever beckoning quest for Christian growth the Y. W. C. A. will challenge alike students of yesterday, today and tomorrow.

HOME-KEEPING HEARTS NELLE WOMACK HINES

A Book Review

Book reviewing is the pride and joy of amateur reporters. But to be able to review a book written and illustrated by a person one knows, and claims for a friend, Call for something more than a formal review. It seems to call for the enthusiasm and freedom of an informal talk.

In the first place there is the cover with its title "Home-Keeping Hearts" in gold. The cover makes one think of spring for its that lovely shade of green associated with spring grass and leaves. The title is well known, as coming from those lines of Longfellow,

"Stay-stay at home my heart and rest,
Home-Keeping hearts are happiest.
For those that wander, they know not where,
Are full of trouble and full of care.
To stay at home is best."

The book is dedicated to "My Grandson and My Garden." Following the dedication are three photographs. The first is a likeness of Mrs. Hines's grandson, Emmet Womack Hines, Jr. The second is a picture of the beautiful garden at Greenacre, the home of the author. The third is a photograph of the garden with Mrs. Hines and her grandson sitting together. The pictures vividly illustrate the two short lines of dedication.

The seven divisions of the book are illustrated with pen and ink sketches drawn by the author. The divisions of the book are:

1. Home-Keeping Hearts.
2. "Where Milk and Honey Flows.
3. Along Comes Spring.
4. A Little Nonsense Now and Then.
5. When Mary Sings.
6. Hollyhocks and Butterflies.
7. The Hills of Yesteryear.

Each division fills and satisfies some need of the reader. Each new poem expresses some special idea in one's mind that has lain dormant, waiting for just such an expression.

It is so nice to have a collection of poems in a lovely binding, ready at hand to use when the desire comes to read. Nor did Mrs. Hines forget her Alma Mater for in one division there appear four short poems headed "At G. S. C. W."

The most attractive thing in the book is the last page. Have you seen pictures made, say forty years ago, of a little fat girl, so prim and sober, with two tight little curls? That's what one finds on the last page, and its entitled "Dear Little Me at the Age of Three."

You will have to own one of these delightful books to see how very charmingly our own Mrs. Hines has written and illustrated things so dear to the hearts of school girls and Georgians. One of the slogans of the campus is "Mrs. Hines' books have come."

TO THE ALUMNAE OF GEORGIA STATE COLLEGE FOR WOMEN

From Alumnae Matrons

Although Wesleyan was my original Alma Mater, my subsequent studies at G. S. C. W. give me the right to be called an Alumnae.

My course here began with studies leading to the renewal of teacher's license, led to the dual role of matron and student, and graduated me to the position of matron. The course has been an interesting one; the studies in the classroom were personally satisfying, yet I found the study of girls even more fascinating. The unmistakable development of personality and character in the girls, even during a year's time, speaks highly of the associations and influences here at G. S. C. To have one's vocation, not only the observation, but some supervision in directing these personalities, is to have in one's hands a source of genuine pleasure.
